MEMPHIS, TENN., TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 13, 1883.

THE repairs on the White House during the last thirteen years have cost the people $272,000, a sum sufficient to build a palace. The New York Sun hints that, on March 4, 1881, there was not even a copper kettle in the Executive Mansion, and that, besides expensive renovation, almost this is true, perhaps Mr. R. B. Hayes, who is supposen to be domiciled somewhere in the northern part of Ohio, ought to be searched.
